

Deb Dalziel

Deb is a passionate and energetic facilitator with a reputation for engaging and motivating participants to embrace new concepts and to strive for personal and organisational excellence by using practical and creative techniques.

A specialist in leadership and team development, Deb has designed and delivered a range of programs over the past ten years including Leadership and Team Development, Performance Management, Facilitation Skills, Training Skills (including Train the Trainer), Presentation Skills, Communication Skills, and Customer Service.

Deb has an extraordinary breadth of experience and has worked with clients across the corporate sectors, finance, not-for-profit, government and education. She has also facilitated large and small industry strategic based workshops and was selected by the Council of Textile and Fashion Industry as their representative to advise government and other stakeholders of industry skills needs.

Deb is also a sought-after mentor who currently donates her time and skills to assist the not-for-profit organisation Whitelion – an organisation which seeks to reconnect disadvantaged youth to the community so that they are living positive and meaningful lives.

Each year Deb spends a minimum of 2 weeks learning from creative leaders in their field of expertise. Recently Deb has completed NLP Practitioner with Roger Deaner (Leader Vision) & Training Dynamics. Trained in Graphic Recording and Facilitation with Lynn Carruthers from the USA and attending the 2008 Conference for International Forum of Visual Practitioners in Chicago; Professionally she holds a Bachelor of Education (University of Melbourne) 1994 and Certificate IV in Workplace Training and Assessment 2007 and is an Accredited Administrator of Teams Management Systems[®] (TMS[®]) 2004.

Outside the consulting and facilitation space Deb enjoys, yoga, cycling, swimming and challenging her left and right coordination with the latest fitness craze boxing.